In recognition of Indigenous Peoples Day (formerly known as Columbus Day), Kansas State University is hosting a one day conference in Manhattan, Kansas.

It is a scheduled school day, however, NASS will be providing transportation for parents/guardians and their children to attend. Parents are responsible for calling in their kids’ absence /arranging absence from their students’ schools.

The subjects of the presentations range from Digital Storytelling to Self-Determination in Education. This activity is recommended for students and families of high school students and mature middle school students.

Lunch is provided.

Parents/Guardians need to register with K-State at http://www.k-state.edu/indigenous-alliance/. You will need to complete registrations for each member of your family’s party. In the registration form, under “organization”, please put:

Native American Student Services, USD 497, parent; or Native American Student Services, USD 497, child’s school, grade

After you’ve registered, contact us at NASS to give us a head count for transportation.

If you have any questions, please contact Jennifer Attocknie at 785-330-4954 or jattockn@usd497.org

Please also check with your school. Most schools have after school homework help, in addition to individual teachers willing to work with you. The best place to start is contacting your teachers. Some are even willing to work with students before school.

Also: You can reserve a study room at the Lawrence Public Library, check at their website, or call 785-843-3833. This is a good option if you need to study with a partner on the weekend.
Kelly Walker, krwalker@usd497.org, is working with each club. There is also an in-building contact/co-sponsor. For the locations of South’s and Central’s club meetings, listen for announcements and look for flyers in the schools for more information. We will continue to keep families updated with information.

NASS provides snacks!
